

That Tired Feeling

"I cordially recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all who may be suffering with indigestion or impure blood, no appetite, Run Down feeling, or generally out of order. It will surely help any who give it a fair trial, if there is any help for them. I have found it of great benefit for Rheumatism. We have used Hood's Sarsaparilla two years and have no sick headache spells, pains or tired feeling." W. N. BARNES, Hartford City, Ind.

Delightful Cordiality.
Minnie Hauk annoyed Ravelli very much while playing Carmen to his Don Jose. For some reason she suddenly embraced him in the middle of a high note. He was so furious that he tried to throw her into the orchestra. She held tightly to him to save herself, he shouting to her to let go the while, until her grip wrenched all the buttons off his red waistcoat. Ravelli rushed to the footlights, and shouted: "Look, she has torn my waistcoat!" The audience thought it was all acting, and responded with thunders of applause. After this scene Minnie Hauk's husband stood at the wings every night, armed with a revolver, ready to blow out Don Jose's brains if he dared to touch Carmen, while Ravelli threatened her with a huge knife as she attempted to approach him. As Jose is supposed to be madly in love with the girl, it looked very absurd to see them darning away from each other all round the stage.

The more we help others to bear their burdens the lighter our own will be.

Bearing-Down Feeling.

The portrait presented here is that of Mrs. J. M. Bender, who lives on the old York Road at Nicetown, Pa. She has been for many years in very poor health.

She had falling of the womb, causing that bearing-down feeling and other forms of female weakness, with headache, severe backache, pains all over her body, and serious kidney trouble.

Her blood was in such a bad state that physicians said she had dropsy. Nearly discouraged, she tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to her great surprise it made her a well woman. She now wishes to tell women all over the world to take the Vegetable Compound and be well.

DEATH IN THE WIND

Awful Loss of Life Reported in Iowa and Minnesota.

TRAIL OF A TORNADO.

Whole Towns Are Wiped Out of Existence.

Number of Injured Said to Run Into the Hundreds—Entire Counties Laid Waste by Wind and Hail—Several Villages Effaced from the Map—No Estimate of the Aggregate Property Loss Is Made, but It Will Be Something Enormous.

THE fearful cyclone which swept over a portion of Southern Minnesota and Northern Iowa Friday night is now known to have been the most disastrous of any storm which has visited the Northwest in many years. From best records obtainable at the time this is written seventy-eight persons are known to have been killed outright, and at least a many more were dangerously injured, several of them fatally, and the number of those less seriously hurt would exceed 100.

The towns of Emmetsburg, Britt, Cerro Gordo, and Algona, Iowa, and Spring Valley and Leroy, Minn., were visited, and the country around them was laid waste. The telegraph wires are down so badly that full accounts of the awful disaster cannot yet be obtained, but a dead, numerically, so far as is known, are as follows:

Near Algona, Iowa, 26
In Mitchell County, Iowa, 10
North of Wesley, Iowa, 10
Near Osgo, Iowa, 13
Cerro Gordo, Iowa, 4
Spring Valley, Minn., 4
Leroy, Minn., 4
Near Britt, Iowa, 7

Total, 78

Starting about ten miles southeast of Spencer in Northwestern Iowa the storm of wind at 8 o'clock began its work of destruction. Taking everything before it, it swept across the State just north of Emmetsburg and Algona, wiping out the town of Cylinder, and mostly injuring the country districts. After passing Mason City and ruining the country northwest of Osgo it bore off to the northeast, crossing the Minnesota line, and soon after 10 o'clock wrecked the town of Leroy, where a bad fire added to the destruction. Spring Valley was right in the path of the cyclone and suffered severely. Turning again to the east the towns of Homer and Lowther were badly damaged, and at one time reported completely wiped off the face of the earth. After crossing the Mississippi and doing considerable damage to farm buildings near Marshland, Wis., the storm seemed to have spent its force. A smaller storm did some damage at Dodge Center, which was not in the path of the main cyclone. The path of the storm was not wide, but it had all the characteristics of the deadly tornado and the dimensions of a cyclone.

Country the Heaviest Loser.

While the loss of life is great, it might have been much greater had there been many towns in the path of the storm. As it was only a few villages were struck. The greatest destruction of life was in the vicinity of Mason City, Iowa; Wesley, Iowa; Fertile, Osgo, and Britt. At Lowther, Iowa, where the town was reduced to kindling, no fatalities are reported, but seventeen persons were injured, some of whom will die.

In Minnesota, the storm seemed to start at Le Roy, after traveling in the air for several miles. Five persons were killed at this place. At Chatfield, Minn., a dance was in progress in the opera-house when the storm descended upon the town. The building was blown down and many persons were hurt. Sixty houses in all were demolished and 100 persons were injured.

The cyclone appeared in Iowa at about 8 o'clock in the evening, and was accompanied by violent lightning and thunder. After the death-laden wind came a flooding rain, which rendered the destruction more complete. There appeared to be three clouds, one above the other, all whirling in opposite directions, and when they came in contact everything in their path was swept away. The storm was eccentric, as in many cases houses were completely demolished while structures directly adjoining were unscathed. The storm lasted about two hours, and traveled over a strip of territory 120 miles in length and from a quarter of a mile to ten miles wide.

With the exception of a call from Thompson, Iowa, for medical assistance to care for the wounded, there were no appeals for aid, and the more fortunate in the scourged district let announce that they will care for the survivors. The devastated district is visited by thousands of spectators from far and near, who charter every conceivable conveyance in which to make the journey. The picture of desolation presented will never be forgotten by those who saw it. That the wind could do what has been done in the way of destruction would not be believed were it not that the ocular proof is at hand. Forests of considerable area, and heavy growth have been leveled as completely as though mown with a giant scythe. In some instances barbed wire fences, that offer the least possible resistance to wind, were blown away as clearly as though a fence had never existed in the locality. Boards have been picked up in which grains of sand are so deeply and thickly embedded as to give them the appearance of the sandpaper of commerce. In many instances the bodies of the dead have been skinned so thoroughly penetrated by the flinty grains of sand as to be almost unrecognizable.

Every train into the district on Saturday took its quota of coffins to every station, and as they were piled up awaiting transportation, a gruesome sight was presented. Sunday was a day of funerals throughout the devastated districts. In Kosuth county, Iowa, alone there were nineteen funerals on Monday, and nearly fifty. The money loss in that county will foot up $250,000, and scores of people there and elsewhere are left destitute. The same condition exists at Leroy and Spring Valley, Minn.

Prey to Flames.

The most disastrous fire in the history of Port and Cedar broke out Sunday afternoon in the dock of the Pacific Coast Elevator Company, and razed for three hours, destroying property valued at over $1,500,000. The fire department was scattered about the city, looking after the small fires, when the alarm from the elevator was rung in. When the engines arrived the fire was beyond control and in half an hour from the time it started the docks for half a mile were on fire. Nothing could be done but to let the fire burn itself out. The Pacific Elevator Company's main building, the coal bunkers of the North Pacific Terminal Company, and the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's wharf, 400 feet in length, were destroyed. The elevator contained nearly 500,000 bushel of wheat. The new plant of the Portland General Electric Company, just arrived from Lynn, Mass., was standing in the yards of the terminal company on the cars, not having been unloaded. The machinery was of the most expensive kind, the most of which was destroyed, and the remainder badly damaged. Two hundred freight cars, 30 of which were loaded, were destroyed. The Oregon Railway and Navigation docks held 1,500 tons of freight, consisting of wood salmon, general merchandise, and cement, all of which was destroyed with the dock. There were 12 red on the dock about 12 cases of salmon from the lower Columbia River and Puget Sound, awaiting shipment for the East. It was valued at about $40,000, and was partly insured.

THE HIGHEST AWARD.

Royal Baking Powder in Strength and Value 20 Per Cent. Above Its Nearest Competitor.

The Royal Baking Powder has the enviable record of having received the highest award for articles of its class—greatest strength, purest ingredients, most perfectly combined—wherever exhibited in competition with others. In the exhibitions of former years, at the Centennial, at Paris, Vienna and at the various State and industrial fairs, where it has been exhibited, judges have invariably awarded the Royal Baking Powder the highest honors.

At the recent World's Fair the examination for the baking powder awards were made by the experts of the chemical division of the Agricultural Department of Washington. The official report of the tests of the baking powders which were made by this department for the specific purpose of ascertaining which was the best, and which has been made public, shows the leavening strength of the Royal to be 140 cubic inches of carbonic gas per ounce of powder. Of the cream of tartar baking powders exhibited at the Fair, the next highest in strength thus tested contained but 133 cubic inches of leavening gas. The other powders gave an average of 111. The Royal, therefore, was found of 20 per cent. greater leavening strength than its nearest competitor, and 44 per cent. above the average of all the other tests. Its superiority in other respects, however, in the quality of the food it makes as to fineness, delicacy and wholesomeness, could not be measured by figures.

It is these high qualities, known and appreciated by the women of the country for so many years, that have caused the sales of the Royal Baking Powder, as shown by statistics, to exceed the sales of all other baking powders combined.

The Circumference of a Circle.

One of the most fascinating studies of the old mathematicians was what is known as the value of "pi"—pi, the Greek letter, expressing the relation of the circumference of a circle to its diameter.

If the value of pi could be found exactly, the old problem of "squaring the circle" might be solved. That is, the side of a square having precisely the area of a given circle might be found. But the value of pi, which is given in the arithmetics approximately as 3.14159, can never be ascertained exactly.

The calculation has been carried to five hundred decimal places without coming to any series of repeating decimals. Mathematicians have now, by means of their modern methods of analysis, demonstrated that the calculation might be extended forever without coming to an exact result.

It is not generally known that there are two numbers of three digits each whose ratio comes surprisingly near that of the diameter and circumference of the circle. They are 113 and 355. They are to each other as one to 3.141592 plus, whereas the value of pi is 3.1415926 plus. The difference is so small that it would amount to only fifty-seven miles in the orbit of the earth. Or, measured by the time it would take the earth to traverse the distance, it is an error of only three seconds in a year.

"Hail to the Chief"

This is half the title of an old song. The balance is, "Who in triumph advances." The public, the press and the medical profession chant this refrain as especially applicable to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, chief among American remedies and preventives for malaria, constipation, dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervousness, unquiet sleep, rheumatic twinges, and the troubles incident to advanced age. It is also universally recognized as a reliable tonic and appetizer. As a family medicine particularly suitable to emergencies it has no equal. The nervous, the feeble seek its aid, and the happiest results follow. The convalescent, the aged and the infirm derive infinite benefit from its use. Against the influence of impure air, bad water, unaccustomed food, overwork and exposure it is a genuine preventive.

Tree Growing.

Queen Victoria has dispatched her head forester at Balmoral to Germany, in order that he may investigate the methods of tree growing which are adopted on the estates of the Duke of Coburg, the Prince of Fursenberg, and other great forest owners. There are about 8,000 acres of woodland on the Queen's Scotch estates at Balmoral and Birkhall, principally pines, fir, larches and spruces. The Queen's finest forest is Balmoral, which was purchased by her majesty in 1848. It extends to 1,000 acres, and consists of primeval Scotch firs, and many noble pine trees.

BRAINS IN FINGER TIPS.

An Examination Reveals Gray Matter in the Nerves of the Blind.

It may not be so generally known that recent post-mortem examinations of the bodies of the blind reveal the fact that in the nerves at the ends of the fingers, well-defined coils of gray matter had formed, identical in substance and in cell formation with the gray matter of the brain, remarks the Chicago Herald. What does this show? asks a writer in the Arena. If brain and nerve are practically identical, is it not plain that, instead of being confined to the cavity of the skull, there is not any part of the surface of the body that can be touched by a pin's point without reaching the brain? It shows, moreover, I think, that, given proper development by recognition and use, a sensation including all the sensations generally received through the other physical organs of sense may be received through the touch at the tips of the fingers.

It proves that a man can think not alone in his head, but all over his body, and especially in the great nerve centers like the solar plexus, and the nerve ends on the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet. The coming man will assuredly perceive and think in every part, from his head down to his feet.

Need I suggest the importance of remembering in this connection how much in our modern life is conveyed by the hand clasp, or the deep delight that comes to lovers in caressing touches, when impelled to pat the hands or the cheek of the beloved one or to stroke her hair? It is through the emotional life that our sensitiveness is led from the physical to the psychic plane of sensation.

Not So Easy.

When Joachim, the celebrated violinist, was living at Hanover, he took it into his head to learn skating. He went on the ice, had the skates fastened on, and asked the attendant to give him a few directions.

"Oh," said the latter, "it is easy enough, Herr Bandmaster. You throw out one leg and then the other, and off you go."

Well and good! Joachim threw out one leg and then the other, and flopped there he lay sprawling on the ice.

"Oh, ay, Herr Bandmaster," said the attendant, with a malicious grin, "it is easy enough, but then it's not quite as easy as fiddling, you know."
